We dedicate . . .

. . . The 1950 Tower to the Religious of the Sacred Heart who celebrate in this Jubilee Year the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of their Society.

Its beginnings were unpretentious. In a small upper room in Paris, after Mass on November 21, 1800, Madeleine Sophie Barat and a few companions knelt before Father Joseph Varin to pronounce their vows as the first members of the Society of the Sacred Heart. A need of the time was about to be satisfied: a system of education at once eminently practical and intensely spiritual which would mold Catholic girls into Catholic women.

Yet St. Madeleine Sophie did not mean to found an educational Society. Indeed, she never meant to found the Society. It was for her, rather, a family unit which would grow, spontaneously and extensively, because of the love within it.

We at Manhattanville are members of that family unit and participate in that love. To the religious we are always "the children" as they are always "the Mothers."

But after four years we leave the campus and its family life. And so the religious have prepared us, practically and spiritually, for life after college. We cannot help but wonder at the common sense, maturity, and insight of the preparation. How do they who are separated from our world of subways, skyscrapers, and ski-trips prepare us so well for it? It is because they have communicated to us the world in which they do live, the Heart of Jesus, which is love.

Through Mother Stuart . . .

Janet Erskine Stuart, R. S. C. J.

. . . whose life and writings embody the spirit of a Sacred Heart education. By quoting Mother Stuart, directly and indirectly, on our divider pages and in our commentaries, we will attempt to correlate the spirit of Manhattanville to the spirit of the Sacred Heart as she expresses it. We will try to prove how life at Manhattanville, from its philosophy classes to its Tea Dances, fulfills the intentions of Sacred Heart education, which Mother Stuart expresses as "not the teaching of disciples, but the training of apostles."

From Chapel to Library, from Founder's to the Tea House, Manhattanville is a small world in itself. In giving glimpses of this world, we cannot forget its surroundings, and must show them if we want to make the picture complete, for many places in the neighborhood have become familiar parts of Manhattanville life.

There is our Parish Church—Annunciation—where we hear late Mass; nearby movies, for an occasional free afternoon; Petit's, the scene of major celebrations; and Doc's, convenient for after-class relaxation. Each fills some need in our days, and proves that our four-year world does not end at the front gate.

To give a "guiding light within" is the aim of the Sacred Heart method of education, and our curriculum is shaped to that end. Religion courses direct that guiding light within. Freshmen study the Life of Christ; sophomores investigate Christian Morality; juniors prepare to defend the faith in Apologetics; and seniors absorb the Theology of Sanctification.

The intensity of the light is assured by a firm philosophical basis. Each college year has its required philosophy course: for freshmen Introduction to Philosophy and Principles of Rational Psychology; for sophomores Fundamental Ethics; for juniors General and Special Metaphysics; and for seniors The Theory of Government, Politics.

those who guide us

The light is diffused over many courses: survey, specialized, and seminar. Our curriculum offers eighteen courses in Art; twenty in Classical Language and Literature; thirty-seven in English, creative and interpretative; five in Mathematics; seventeen in French; nine in German; fifteen in Italian; twenty in Spanish; nine in Russian.

Music History and Appreciation features three courses; Music Theory, forty; Music Education, eight; and Applied Music, ten. Natural Science includes thirty-six courses; Philosophy, twenty-four; Psychology and Education, twenty-two; Religion, eleven; and Social Studies, fifty-seven.

One Sheridan Place, Radburn, New Jersey
Bishop McDonnell Memorial High School, Brooklyn, N. Y.
MAJOR: Psychology — MINOR: German

Tying a kerchief over her pretty blond head, Dee locks the NSA office and starts for a gala time in Radburn. Her easy humor transforms work into play; her quick sympathy makes children turn to her as an understanding counselor and makes contemporaries see her as a friend whose loyalty is strong. Though her clothes follow the latest trends in fashion, her sincerity and compatibility will never go out of style.

MAJOR: English — MINOR: Social Studies

Snow glistened in the gym when Hilda reigned serenely over her masterpiece, the winter Prom. Who else could have crowned gaiety with elegance then and on so many Sunday afternoons and have emerged from the attendant headaches with composure unruffled and every lustrous hair in place? Who else could, without stopping to plan, have so much fun on Cape and campus? Who but Hilda, whose real loveliness is this: that she is ever ready to share and to care.

MAJOR: English — MINOR: Psychology

To Mary belong the rare qualities of unerring tact and an intuitive knowledge of what makes people happy. An efficient organizer, Mary has worked ceaselessly for the Relief Committee. Her vital interest in the literary has made her a valuable English Club member. Mellow humor and a gracious, old-fashioned manner belong unmistakably in her repertoire, and give whatever she undertakes a delicate air and the assurance of completion.

Catherine Baxter E. de M.

68 Rowan Street, Providence, Rhode Island
Rogers High School, Newport, Rhode Island
MAJOR: History — MINOR: Education

Kay's tireless energy and calm, clear mind proved the pace-setters of the Tower, and her debating dexterity a challenge even to Oxonians. With deep chuckles and twinkling eyes she publicizes Rhode Island. Her words are direct and pertinent, but they are always the expression of innate charity, of understanding humor. She builds friendships with awareness of the feelings and interests of others, and makes love her keystone.

When from the Senior room we hear the beat of "Manhattan Towers", of an original Bourke theme, we know that Ellie and her piano are the center of a group of harmonizing friends. Who else but Ellie could major in economics, speak French fluently, and be an excellent pianist-composer on the side? A dry middle-Western wit, a slight Kansas drawl, a streamlined precision, and an open and thoroughly likable personality are what we'll remember of Ellie.

Franny has a mind as active as her manner. It's candor, alacrity, and inquisitiveness enrich any formal or informal discussion. Over a cup of Tea House coffee or over a German textbook her forceful mind spurs the conversation. Yet she is not all mind. Her omnipresent, wide grin and her spontaneous giving—"Here, have a bite!"—show that Franny has less interest in the many topics she discusses than in the many people with whom she discusses them.

Dim the lights, pull the curtain, and Connie is in ecstasy. In the audience at a Saturday matinee or backstage on a Manhattanville first night, she loves the theatre. Acting holds the spotlight, but tennis, reading, and country weekends form the backdrop. Stimulating and witty, she has a store of imitations to set you chuckling and a depth to her thinking that makes us admire as well as like her.

Ann puts her music aside and is ready to zoom off in her coupe to transport anything from pins to pine trees. Music is her love and if she teaches her pupils as well as she directed her Girl Scouts, sight-singing may become second nature to them! Her energy is inexhaustible—those who know her, attribute its flow to her whimsy. A balanced notion of life's seriousness tempers exuberance and humor, making Anne a mature and mellow person.

MAJOR: English — MINOR: Art

Nancy has an elfin air that is utterly bewitching and utterly Gaelic also. Capable of the most uproarious antics, she achieved a portrayal of Pooh Bear that created a sensation. But it isn't all laughs with Nance; she has, too, an unassuming generosity and a carefree kindness. Sports and world affairs are high on her list of interests, but she saves the first place for anything Irish. From the Olympics to Broadway to County Cork, our felicitations follow!

Claire Marie Carroll E. de M.

Claire's generous love encompasses the college as a whole and as individuals. With checked cap set jauntily askew, she tickles your laughter one minute and wins your allegiance the next. A touch of dry, candid wit marks her efficient organization of so much at the core of everything that is Manhattanville. A perfect balance of the down-to-earth and the idealistic and an additional spark of twinkling humor give us Claire, a leader whom all would willingly follow.

Audrey Irene Cella E. de M.

164 Waverly Place, New York, New York
St. Laurence Academy, New York, N. Y.
MAJOR: History — MINOR: Philosophy

A skillful diplomat in the art of conversation, Audrey always manages to include everybody by suggesting the topic they most enjoy discussing. A merry femininity characterizes her; her pleasant ways enchant at any prom and even when she is lost in a "whodunit" her dimples will suddenly appear. Audrey has left us the impression of unstudied frankness and certainty of conviction. She never pretends; she is always herself.

Alice Chamberlin E. de M.

Convent of the Sacred Heart, Eden Hall, Torresdale, Pa.
MAJOR: Philosophy — MINOR: History

A halo of perpetually neat curls, an instantaneous laugh, and a measureless capacity for fun outline a casual sketch of our casual Alice. Never one to let petty obstacles upset her take-it-easy way, she has, still, a lightning perception of the cause of any real problem or difficulty. Accomplished writer, versatile musician, and emphatic Christopher all in one, Alice is a rare blend of rich humor and mellow sobriety.

MAJOR: Philosophy — MINOR: English

There is definitely an air of the old country about Peg. Her dry humor and her knowledge of philosophy amaze us. With tireless effort she has expanded the work of DISC and Recreational, yet she always manages to find time for relaxation. Peggy enjoys nothing more than a good conversation, and we have often been inspired by her mature and wholesome views of life. Through good luck and bad she has lovingly given Manhattanville her best.

9 East 96th St., New York City, New York
Convent of the Sacred Heart, Greenwich, Conn.
MAJOR: History — MINOR: Sociology and Philosophy

"A little girl in a big town" is the way Ann describes herself. And a very mature little girl she is, fascinated by New York's art galleries and theatres; and keenly interested in the why and wherefore of things. As student resettlement director of NFCCS, she was more than reporter and international hostess. With understanding tact she has become a friend who makes bewildered foreigners feel at home, and proved herself a person who lives up to her own high ideals.

MAJOR: Philosophy — MINOR: Art

Comic artist of the adagio, master of infectious laughter, and instigator of countless hilarious escapades—that's Midge. Her eloquent sincerity has often stirred Debating Club, and as NSA delegate she has shown us the selfless way to "do the truth in charity." In the constant rush of a busy life she keeps an even disposition and a willingness to do favors large and small. She deserves—and wins—our admiration for difficult tasks well done.

Rosemary Dunne E. de M.

55 Bayview Avenue, Great Neck, New York
Great Neck High School, Great Neck, N. Y.
MAJOR: English — MINOR: Art

Rosie brings the gay touch to everything from charades to the latest Centurion. It shows in the good-looking clothes and animal-cracker curtains her skillful needle creates, in hit songs for class entertainments, and in her conversational flair. Even her most thoughtful discussions are flavored with it—she expresses her strong convictions with good humored tact and meets problems with quick, lightehearted understanding. It is small wonder, then, that she has so many, many friends.

Shirley Ellis E. de M.

381 Park Ave., New York City, New York
Convent of the Sacred Heart, New York City, N. Y.
MAJOR: English — MINOR: History

Completely at home on the other side of the footlights, Shirley acts, shifts scenery, and gives the bandbox crowd a side-splitting imitation with offhand ease. She puts the same effortless poise and natural wit to good use at Cape Cod house parties or in 1950's class entertainments. Her mirth is always kind, for its roots are deep in a nature rich in sympathy and spontaneous generosity.

796 East 163rd Street, New York City, New York
Cathedral High School, New York City, N. Y.
MAJOR: French — MINOR: Greek

Loving warmth and an indefatigable sense of humor characterize Joan, who is never without a smile or a word of friendly encouragement. She admits, with a chuckle, that her zest for travel has taken her no farther than Geneva (New York!), but her post-college plans include a wider itinerary, after her master's degree is safely won. With wise sense of proportion, she tempers serious ambition with a love of fun and balances practicality with the noblest idealism.

Margaret Fuller E. de M.

1 West 72nd Street, New York City, New York
Convent of the Sacred Heart, Eden Hall, Torresdale, Pa.
MAJOR: History — MINOR: English

There is an indefinable quality in Margaret, a certain nonchalant nobility that links her name with idealism. She champions world understanding with sincere eloquence and has a perceptive mind attuned to the poetic in music, in literature, in any of a wide range of interests. Still she will break off an earnest discussion with throaty laughs, and change its tone with soft-voiced wit. Prom time, any time, she has that elusive thing called charm.

MAJOR: History — MINOR: Psychology

When Terry won her mink neckpiece, we all thought "it couldn't happen to a nicer person," because it is very easy to like Terry. Attracted at first by her soft-spoken friendliness, people are drawn closer by her tolerant, mellow outlook on life. Wholeheartedly she gives her enthusiasm to the task at hand: stitching a costume for Dramat, perhaps, or spreading her faith in the United Nations. Happiest at beach or ballet, she makes us happy by being near when we need her.

Joan Carol Hatkin E. de M.

969 Park Avenue, New York City, New York
Convent of the Sacred Heart, New York City, N. Y.
MAJOR: Philosophy — MINOR: English

For Joan, truth is a source of delight, for she loves to study the answers to life's perplexing problems and to spread wide her newly-found knowledge among those who still seek it. Yet there is emphasis on lighter pleasures—the thrill of a horse race, the splendor of good music, the relaxation of a summer on the beach. In word and act she betrays the rare and remarkable gift of gentle charity.

Even the most serious debate may end in a burst of merriment if your opponent is Gretchen. Her down-to-earth conviction involves her deeply in thoughtful discussion, but she will suddenly chuckle at herself and restore the balance of humor. Here on campus or home for a party-filled weekend, she gives her interest and energy with zest, and constantly illustrates the meaning of friendship.

Joan Higgins E. de M.

277 Park Avenue, New York City, New York
Convent of the Sacred Heart, Greenwich, Conn.
MAJOR: English — MINOR: Philosophy

Joan refuses to take life too seriously. With a mild chuckle, she reduces inflated problems to manageable size, and remains unimpressed by sententiousness or sham. But she is not distant or aloof; instead she has a contagious enthusiasm for the right things, which has brightened the playing field and Relief room. Boxer dogs and the concept of being keep her busy. Well-balanced and self-possessed, she has a talent for making acquaintances her friends.

MAJOR: English — MINOR: French

Fran belies the traditional picture of the penny-pinching Scotsman, for she has made a four year career of giving: to her favorite English Lit, to her Tuesday night Glee Club sessions, and most of all, to her friends. She loves to talk, mostly about past or planned visits to the Highlands, but she never makes listening to her a chore. In fact, Fran makes nothing a chore, for she lightens even the most tedious jobs with joy.

MAJOR: Philosophy — MINOR: English

Jean is a paradox: leprechaun wit gives merriment to friends in original presents and makes her nonsensical ramblings the spice of senior life; an abbreviated stature completes the impish element of the paradox. The other is her strong and pervasive philosophy, which has confirmed in us a vital spirit of Catholic Action. In an exuberant love for the meaning of life, she has caught and communicated the living joy of Our Lady.

At first glance "Okie" doesn't look old enough to graduate, but conversation with her reveals a mature personality. In frenzied varsity games, puzzling math classes, or engrossing Science Club meetings, Okie is a whirr of motion. But she can relax too, preferably with three friends and a pack of cards, and has the rare faculty of making others relax as she does. Perhaps it is her cheering laugh or her do-you-really-mean-it attitude that does it. Whatever it is, we'll miss it.

A plaid skirt, thick white socks, and that O'Leary stride mark Scotty's presence. Smashing the winning serve in a tennis game, feeding her pet chameleon, or dancing at a college weekend, she is always generous and friendly, and almost always laughing. Miss Holland's office was a lively place with Scotty as head of A.A. Whether discussing basic economic principles or wiring Detroit at the last moment before the Prom, she keeps the atmosphere charged with hilarity.

Anne O'Neil E. de M.

17640 South Woodland Road, Shaker Heights, Ohio
Laurel School, Shaker Heights, Ohio
MAJOR: Psychology — MINOR: History

Nance has shown us that maturity need not be grave. With elaborate jokes and whimsical informality she puts a lilt into her life and scatters the riches of good feeling. She fires in people her own buoyant enthusiasm for the team, the class, or the college, making them eager to follow her lead and to share her goals. With a deep sense of responsibility she is faithful to convictions born of generous idealism. In Nance we have known the expansive and loving spirit of Manhattanville.

We have seen her posing on the stage as Eeyore, and as the heart-rending Ophelia, or exclaiming "how terrific!" when she found a masterpiece of English literature in the Essay mailbox. Whichever one it was, Ann's Alice-in-Wonderland enthusiasm undoubtedly impressed you. The Essay will certainly never forget her, and the gym door still has bruises from her insistence on that 9:30 cigarette. To praise her winning charm, we wish we could write sonnets as lovely as hers.

MAJOR: Economics — MINOR: History

As one of the most thoroughly Irish girls on the campus, Nora flavors her conversation with a bit of blarney and will trace her ancestry back—almost to the first kings of Ireland. Earnestly she fathoms the problems of supply and demand; winsomely she provokes a frivolous hour—and never drops a stitch in the transition. Adroit competence and unaffected honesty project her personality, while a sunny smile and spirited repartee reflect her charm.

The Seniors

DEAN
COME!
'50

When the Class of 1950 climbed up the hill for the first time, they wore the what-happens-next expression of all freshmen. But in orientation they soon became acclimated to college life—learned what all those bells meant, discovered how to keep up with the bulletin board.

The Venerable Ladies told them, kindly, that they were Infants; but they soon proved able ones, as they toted stacks of Centenary chairs about the campus and took enthusiastic part in the Centenary Pageant which replaced class entertainments for the year. And when election time came, they made an adult choice in the mature but lighthearted team of Anne and Claire.

PRINTING

Their newness wore off when they met Rome and The Romans and preliminary skirmishes with the concept of being, and it seemed no time before the hazees were themselves hazers, who drove freshman jalopies up and down the wrong-way stairs, but stopped mercifully short of the used-car lot to declare their charges "perfect models."

In showing us the funniest moments from a "Football Weekend," the 50'ites began, under Margie Burch's direction, their class tradition of hilarious entertainments. Clever lyrics made "You've Got to Be a Football Hero" a solarium standby, and brought college fame to such spontaneous ditties as "This is our concept of survey" ("Mother, please wait until June for the defenestration of us.")

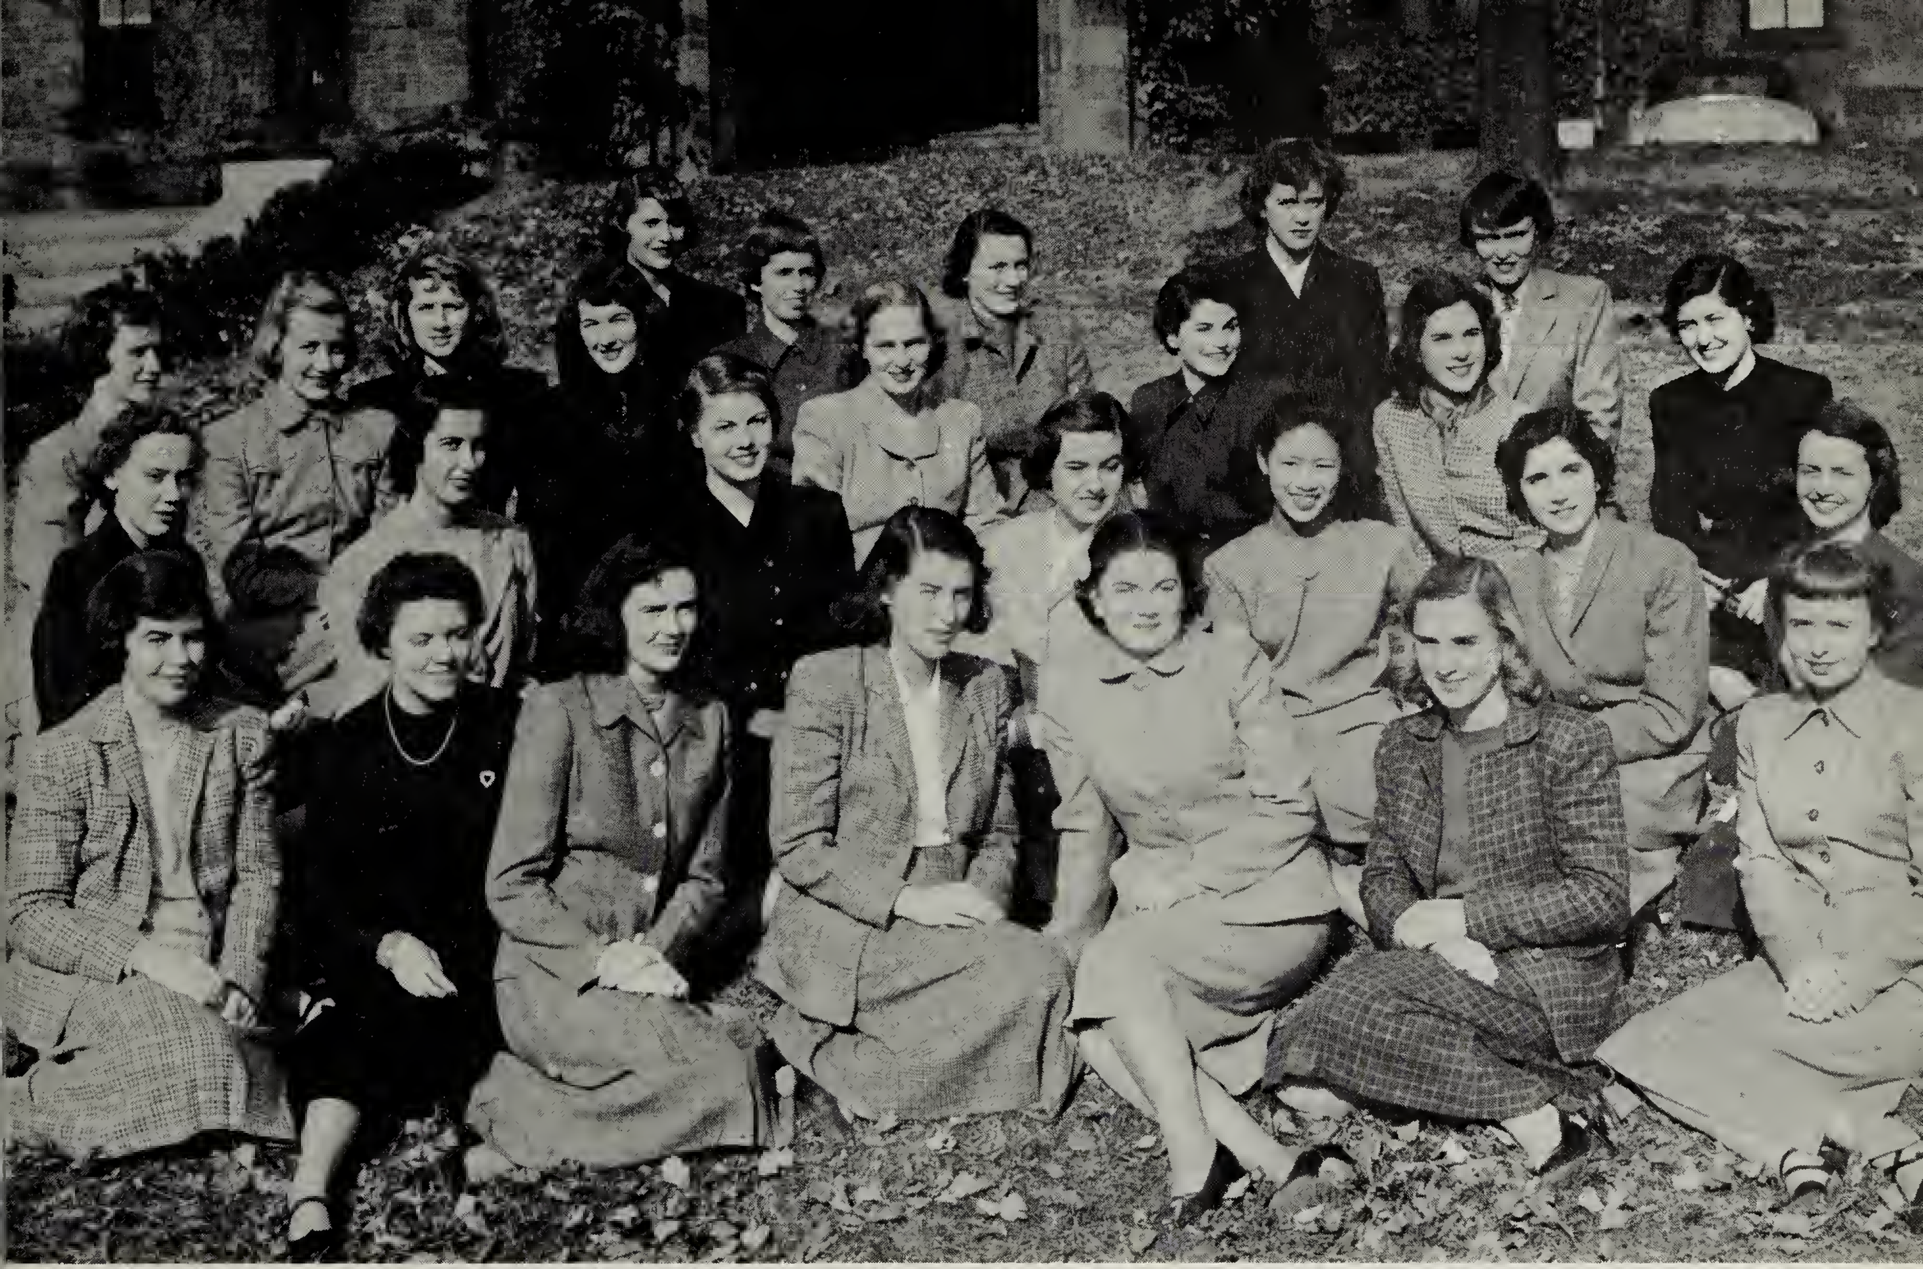
Sophomore year was hard—no doubt about it! The class acquired fluency in Old English and developed a taste for the most apt quotations—all 365 of them! But they put books aside to bring the year to a tuneful close. In a flower-decked Benziger Building they made a bright, pretty picture as, with Donna as conductor, they sang melodious Serenades to their sister class.

Senior Class officers: Anne O'Neil (President) and Claire Carroll (Vice-President).

Next year began the business of Junior-sistering with friendly zest and gave the class of '52 a welcome happy enough to banish most lingering cases of timidity and homesickness. Happiness came to them, too, when they filled out their class schedules and saw the nice blank column headed "Saturday." With Friday night the class limit, and with the pressure of required subjects lighter, they found more time to strengthen college friendships and to publish the '49 Tower. The combination of Natalie's soothing influence, class cooperation, and the printer's hamburgers produced a colorful credit to '50's ingenuity.

Shirley and the cast of "Winnie the Pooh" took us back to the nursery for a whimsical evening, and Prophecies to the tune of "South Pacific" gave the '49ers a gay sendoff and had the college cheering: "There is nothing like a nurse."

At last they were ready to move their mortar-board tassels the final quarter of the way round and become the Senior Class. Stepping into positions of often overwhelming responsibility, they fulfilled their new duties capably and cheerfully with Mother Brady's solicitude to help them. They faced the first thesis seminar in the not-too-hurried, not-too-worried frame of mind that has shaped all their actions. As one of them put it: "If the roof were burning, we'd still take time out for a joke or a hand of bridge."



First Row: K. Baxter, A. Chamberlin, C. Carroll, A. O'Neil, A. E. Carlin, F. Buckley, M. Banks; Second Row: J. Boland, H. Banks, M. Burch, B. G. Corrigan, J. Chang, M. J. Cronin, M. Dunn; Third Row: M. Couzens, D. Alexander, A. Cella, N. Davis, A. Carlin, N. Carr, K. Drislane, C. Castellini, R. Dunne, J. Devlin, D. Cole, C. Carey, A. Doyle.

Evidence of that carefree spirit: on the Founder's elevator bulletin board, official notices were buried under an avalanche of cartoons, poems masquerading as T. S. Eliot's, and ransom notes for kidnapped toys. Turning from politics to non-intellectual relaxation, they formed the Seminar on the Single State—in which the most interested students were those wearing brand new diamonds on the third finger of their left hands.

From the summit of their college experience they gave us some sage pre-prom advice: "Get on the ball!" they cautioned us in a typically original production staged under Connie Carey's direction.

Christmas vacation passed, and when college reopened there were even more engagements to be announced in the dining room. The future was closer and still closer at hand. Together the seniors made a fervent last retreat as undergraduates and wrote and rewrote their theses far into the night. Finally the time came for the last classes, the last exams, for packing up, for Prophecies, Daisy Chain, Serenades, and the Will.

In leaving the college the class bequeaths more to us than flourishing clubs and committees, Tea House laughter, and the senior room piano. They leave us, in our friendship with them, in the whole tenor of their influence, a generous love that is part of the integral heritage of Manhattanville.

The Juniors

Junior Year, the dream of chair-laden freshmen and harassed sophomores, was all that it promised to be. We enjoyed lower deck and classless Saturdays, pondered Metaphysics and practiced defending the Faith in Apologetics.

The first two years had gone quickly, and now as upperclassmen, we determined to stand behind the leadership of the seniors, once our hazers. No longer wrong-way jalopies or sophomore victims of Cavitis, we willingly accepted our increasing responsibilities.

SPIRIT OF THE TOWER '50
REJECTS

We returned to childhood with a new version of Mother Goose Land. The play, directed by Barbara Kearins and Phyl Grady, featured Cavy's ballet against a backdrop of a never-never-land castle and a peppermint tree. Jo Lees, as Mother Goose, taught Tommy (Pat Meier) how to find the land of "Cockle Shells and Wishing Wells."

Under the sure guidance of Maureen and Mickey, and the never-failing smile and sympathy of Mother Morgan, we enjoyed our in-between year. We remember the assemblies of Mere Mass Marriage Morgan as times when we thought and laughed together and became more assured and glad in our unity.

Our tasks were numerous, but each was fun. Adorned with white gloves and cap and gown, we became Junior Ushers, and tried to be dignified at the appropriate moments. Then there were new friends to welcome into the class and our freshmen sisters to watch over. From the first day of Orientation Week we knew that they would fit into the college pattern. It was fun to help the Indians through the perils of hazing and first examinations. And there were wedding bells in the class and previews of the bridesmaids in Lower Deck. Ski trips were an old fad, but enjoyed as much as ever, while records in Mother Morgan's office comforted those left home to study.

The Tower was our big present to the seniors. The clack of typewriters, six cups of tea made from a single tea bag were highlights of meetings held in the lounge or behind the coke machine. Synonyms flew to left and right between the growing stacks of write-ups. Pictures gathered from every part of the Campus, lined the corners of the room. Ever-patient classmates brought us food and drink, typed papers, and gave suggestions. The lounge became a place of long silences and sudden bursts of laughter. But despite a few minor casualties and such impediments as mixed metaphors, we enjoyed everything that went into the Tower.

Being being solved with the greatest degree of Metaphysical certainty, we arrived at the end of a full and wonderful year. There were prophecies for the seniors and last songs to be sung, and we received their last will and testament with fitting solemnity.

1951 seems very near now, and ever as we present our Tower to the Senior Class, we realize that they are passing on to us their position of leadership. The past three years have been happy ones filled with wonderful memories. It doesn't seem long ago that we brought our now famous ballet dresses for "Norwegian Nights," or spent long nights excavating quotes either from memory or imagination.

Soon we will be seniors, and we look forward to that last and best of years with expectation and joy.

JUNIOR CLASS SONG

Our eyes are on you—

Your laughter, your music

Your friendships, your comrades true.

Others showed to us ideals,

Since they to the goal have run,

Let us follow in their steps

The Sophomores

From the beginning of their life at college the Class of '52 bid and made a grand slam as they changed from Dummies to Aces. Drawing on large resources of mirth and ingenuity and strengthened by maturity, they formed themselves into a successful unit. With friendly authority they handled the Puny Papooses firmly but mercifully. Smiles were outlawed during hazing, but when sophomores offered freshmen the peace pipe, the hazees knew they had been blessed with kind teachers the whole time.

Harboring mixed sentiments of interest and trepidation, the Class met those inevitable sophomore obstacles, Ethics and History and English Surveys. They took advantage of unlimited lights to tackle the problems of Rights and Duties and the Congress of Vienna; and together they laughed fearlessly in the face of the "grim ghost Grendel."

With energetic skill and teamwork they captured the hockey trophy, and in reviving the spirits of defeated opponents with disarming and apologetic smiles, they showed themselves generous winners.

"Heavenly Headlines," with Julie Kammerer as producing angel, brought us one step closer to the pearly gates. Studded with song, cherubic wit, and capable acting, the story of "The Littlest Angel" filled us all with the Christmas spirit.

Finally, after the worrying weeks of exams, the sophomores drew graduates to the Benziger Building and entreated:

"On things much fonder
Please sit and ponder
As we sing our songs to you."

In clever words fitted to a hit parade of melodies, Becky, her committee, and the class paid tribute to their senior sisters. Students, parents, and friends left applauding and humming tunes from a tuneful evening.

So they ended a hectic but happy year under Mother Byles' friendly guidance and Jeanne's and Nancy's spirited leadership. Chair chains are now but a vague memory. and all freshman year a distant dream. The gratifying sound of Serenades applause, stimulating hours spent in class, companionable ones in the Tea House, "snow flakes" fluttering from the gym roof in the falling snow . . . these are the things to be remembered.

Drawn together by strong ties of friendship and the desire to share and make useful their many ingenious ideas, the sophomores stand ready to take the labryinthine ways of Junior year in their capable stride.

The Freshmen

Each fall the college wonders what sort of class the new freshmen will be. The freshmen themselves wonder what Manhattanville will hold for them. But whether it was the expected or the unexpected, the Class of '53 adapted itself from the second week in September, and upper classmen soon knew a wonderful group had joined them.

The orientation program lessened their confusion and left them willing and eager. During hazing, their respect for elders, otherwise known as Colossal Chiefs, prompted them to accept the title of Puny Papooses and to live on the war path for three days. A resilient nature, however, brought them through the harrowing experience, and they were admitted as braves of the tribe.

Then came their introduction to the traditional chairs. Assembly lines were formed, and many a gay song was heard above the clatter of steel and wood, as freshmen pushed or dragged their favorite campus furniture. Perhaps it was in the friendly spirit of these energetic sessions that our sister class decided on their leaders. The choice was a wise one, for Phyllis and Mary will maintain the standards of Manhattanville, and inspire constantly the interest and cooperation of '53.

PIPE OF PEACE

Freshman Class officers: Phyllis Duffy (President) and Mary Sheppach (Vice-President).

Their sparkling performance of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, Trial by Jury, exemplified their spirit. After talented songstresses and many stage "naturals" had entertained the college, we applauded their achievements. And producing the class song was anything but a major problem, for musical and creative talents are plentiful and capably utilized.

Now, as the first year of their college life ends, the freshmen are filled with zeal and vivacity and have laid a foundation for mature values as well. We know, that with this foundation, their willing cooperation and their eagerness to succeed will carry them victoriously through the months to come. Onward to sophomore perils!

In a college consecrated to Christ's Sacred Heart, it is altogether fitting that its students be dedicated to His Mother, and that they should throng in legions about her feet, making her the guardian of all their plans and aspirations.

In "Mater," we have found a timeless confidante of our own age, one to whom we can give our hearts completely.

With the world in a precarious balance, it is difficult to maintain an even perspective and proper sense of values. The Children of Mary have worked and prayed to achieve and preserve these things.

With the help of Mother O'Byrne, Jean, and the Council, we have seen the necessity for bringing our Lady into our lives and so into the world.

Government by ourselves . . .

Student Government officers: P. Duffy, J. R. Sheridan, M. McKay, C. Carroll, A. O'Neil (President), N. Moran, M. Sheppach.

Student Government extends beyond a group of class officers to include each one of us, since we as adults have both the right, and the obligation, to govern ourselves. It goes deeper than the externals of laws and penalties to an ideal of mature self-reliance and cooperation.

This year Student Government made new progress toward that ideal. It emphasized that the constitution through which it works is a stable, but not a static thing, since in its amendment clause it provides for change in regulation whenever change would represent real progress and not a passing impulse.

Our officers have given us strong and genial leadership in everything from conducting assemblies to sustaining college spirit. To Mother McCarthy for her sage direction, to Anne and Claire and the others for their patience, enthusiasm and cheer: our appreciative thanks.

A gracious way of life . . .

Welfare is a unique organization. Around the clock it covers every phase of life on campus, from elections through meetings to dining room courtesy. It represents our wish to maintain a spirit of gracious living amid the confusing complexities of college existence.

This standard is not easy to maintain, but Welfare is ever-present rousing the forgetful with pleas for a tidier gym and a quieter chapel corridor. A neat black notice board announcing clubs and committee meetings keeps the threads of a busy day untangled. The sensible distribution of extra-curricular activities is safeguarded by an ingenious point system.

Working with Student Government and the Faculty it completes our education by developing social responsibility and leadership. Directed by Mother O'Byrne's prudent foresight and Connie's appealing friendliness, Welfare has instilled in us the ideal of Christian politeness, which is Charity.

In the uncertainty of today, there is an urgent call to action for each soldier of Christ. We at Manhattanville have received a full Catholic training. In the realization of this, we have endeavored to fulfill at least in part the needs of the world around us, and guided by our ever-exuberant Jean, have developed a living spirit of service.

Nearby, the impish joy and pranks of youthful Scouts at Annunciation School are their leaders' weekly anticipation. Pupils at neighboring churches and parish schools keep the hands of catechists full. Corned-beef sandwiches and mountains of stamped envelopes give evidence of the varied activities at Friendship House. From Casita Maria and McMahon Shelter to Vesey Street and the Cancer Hospital, little tasks present themselves with startling clarity to all who are willing.

In their own fields, Liturgical and Mission Study Clubs have spread the search for a fuller grasp of Faith to the four corners of the earth, while the necessity for alert Catholics here at home resulted in the formation of a committee to promote better citizenship.

The call to action, continued throughout our lives, springs from the need around us. In the building up of a powerhouse of love for God based on ideals and principles laid before us, we will reap the fulfillment of the future.

INTERMISSION

THE SPANISH GROUP

Zagalas y Pastores . . . Calahorra
El Niño Jesus . . . Puerto Rican Carol

The sound of chimes across the campus and the opening chords of "Veni, veni Emmanuel" brought us our first invitation to live the Christmas spirit in song. And when the program was over, well-earned applause assured both Glee Clubs that the old tradition of caroling was as loved as ever. Madrigals carried this tradition off-campus when they presented their annual concert in Scarsdale, and continued to sing on state occasions throughout the year.

Leaving Christmas bells and pine boughs behind, the Glee Clubs undertook two Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. The Mikado, conducted by "Doctor" Anne E. Carlin, gave us an amusing glimpse of Old Japan, and the freshman production of Trial by Jury strengthened our first impression of '53 as a singing class.

The organ might drop a third, or a giant poinsettia be difficult to place artistically, but Mother Morgan's contagious and merry enthusiasm and Mary's tranquil control of any situation kept intact the club's good humor—as much a part of them as the songs they sing.

We ask and resolve . . .

Debating Club officers: Peggy Murphy, Nancy Carr, Kay Baxter (President), Mary Kay Donovan.

The first speakers ascended the rostrum with a dignity worthy of the House of Lords, and the audience became alert, certain that a lively and stimulating battle would ensue. The meeting could feature the able Oxonians who introduced us to the British debating style; or the Junior team which spelled inter-class victory with their persuasive approach; or almost any thought-provoking discussion. Whatever the program, each session found Kay Baxter a spirited leader.

Realizing that a knowledge of current issues is necessary for an active mind, the club members, guided by Mother Parton and Mr. McClelland, have considered today's most controversial topics, and Forum discussions directed by Sue Purcell have prepared freshmen for their interested participation.

Whereas this organization presents the living problems of today; and whereas each discussion draws us closer to an understanding of the Catholic viewpoint; resolved that: the Debating Club has been an integrating guide to the right answers in a world of questions.

Freshman Forum officers: Barbara McDonnell, Claire Duchaine, Phyllis Duffy, Sue Purcell (President).

Gerald Johnson-Smith's speech provokes the thoughtful expressions of Kay Baxter, Mary Kay Donovan and his fellow Oxonian, Robin Day.

We act . . .

Dramatic Club officers: Carolyn Bowers, Rose Sun (President) and Shirley Ellis.

A full and busy year commencing with Margaret Murphy's "Bethania" gave Dramatic Club ample practice in carrying other people's bales. Each Tuesday night Rosie's persuasive humor produced willing stage hands while under Mother Maguire's and Mrs. O'Connell's constructive enthusiasm, actresses strove to play each role with conviction.

The realistic set of "Pink String and Sealing Wax" transformed the stage into a Victorian parlor, and lively acting kept the audience in suspense. Christmas brought an unusual but beautiful retelling of the Nativity, and Reverend Mother's Feast wishes impressed us forcefully with the full implications of Our Lady's role in our life.

This year there has been technical perfection in Dramat's lighting and scenery, and with an excellent presentation of "Much Ado About Nothing" the Little Theatre has become Manhattanville's Old Vic.

To the choir is given the privilege of adding the full beauty of the Church's song to her highest prayer, for the Chant gives voice to the drama of the Liturgy. This is reward enough for the early-awakened choir members who struggle to synchronize words and music with or without the vanishing piano. Mother Morgan's spontaneous quips and Peggy's good humor have made even those pre-breakfast rehearsals fun.

The choir officers excel in tracing lost Libers, directing traffic in the pews, and singing lustily from the third bench. There is no requirement for joining the Choir—only the willingness to sing joyously for God. For, as Mother Morgan has taught us, "to sing is to pray twice."

We 'give and gain' . . .

Surrounded by rows of coats and dresses, and by piles of shoes and sweaters, volunteers kept busy in the Relief Room while Janey flew from there to the successful Bridge Tea with boundless drive. Throughout the year, with Mother Byles' enthusiasm to guide them, Relief Committee members have brought before us the tremendous responsibility of helping all.

In a hilarious student-faculty party we proved generosity was fun, and to celebrate Reverend Mother's Feast we emptied our pockets and scoured neighborhood stores for several thousand bars of soap to build the third floor of the International College in Tokyo, Japan.

In NFCCS . . .

National Federation of Catholic College Students, representatives at Manhattanville: Ann Doyle (student resettlement director), Peggy Walsh, Margie Burch (senior representative).

Under Mother Byles' guidance we joined with students from other colleges—both Catholic and non-Catholic—to help make Catholic collegiate opinon a vital force.

Midge Dunn and other Manhattanville delegates and interested participants attended clinics on Academic Freedom, Student Government, and other timely issues which highlighted the National Student Association's New York Regional program this year. Manhattanvillains from Chicago to Tokyo spoke at an International Day held to commemorate and promote world-wide student unity.

"The student and the lay apostolate" was the year's theme for the National Federation of Catholic College Students. It found expression in the successful Overseas Relief Campaign, the great expectations of the Holy Year pilgrimage plans, and in the welcome sound of many new foreign tongues on campus.

Margie Burch, Ann Doyle, and our other representatives led the college in greeting the hundreds of students who met at Manhattanville for the organization's Regional Congress.

National Commission on Interracial Justice representatives at college: E. MacLellan, F. Fraher, E. Bourke (regional chairman), J. O'Connor (national chairman), P. Grady, M. Fitzgerald.

Manhattanville is headquarters for both the NFCCS National and Regional Commissions on Interracial Justice. This year the Commission, with Mother Dowd as Moderator and Joyce O'Connor as chairman, again sponsored a nationwide poster and short story contest to make Catholic college students more aware of the principles and problems of interracial justice.

This awareness was increased also by the Interracial Quarterly, edited by Jane Devlin, which informs each Catholic college of the work being done by others, and of advances and abuses of Interracial Justice on a national level.

Damman Interracial Study Club: E. Melchior, M. Murphy, K. Baxter, P. Daley, M. Banks, E. Bourke (Chairman).

Elinor Bourke has directed the Regional Commission, which organizes Catholic Action in the region, including our own tasks at Friendship House and Vesey Street.

A decade ago, with her address "Principles versus Prejudices" our President, Mother Dammann, laid the foundation for Manhattanville's interracial consciousness, which has resulted in the Dammann Interracial Study Club—called succinctly, DISC. Every Tuesday, Elinor presides over a meeting in the lounge. Members discuss and try to combat erring and prejudicial opinions. Currently they have emphasized the Negro question, and sponsored talks at college by prominent authorities.

International Club officers: Seated: R. Narita, B. de Moya, B. D. Finlay (President), T. Ugaya; Standing: B. G. Corrigan, C. Ramos-Cardenas, Y. Skeffrey, E. Fagan.

The International Club was created to "provide a common basis for . . . real friendship and understanding" among Manhattanvillains from all over the world. Formed only a year ago by Mary Lou Loewe, ex '51, the Club launched a successful career under Mother Bourneuf's enthusiastic direction, and with Barbara Finlay as president.

"Music of the Spheres," a program of folk songs and dances given on Reverend Mother's holiday, climaxed a year in which members of vastly different races and nationalities proved with a gay spirit of friendship, that there can be harmony in our sphere.

Each fall and spring the English Club initiates a new group of aspiring writers. With the assistance of Mother Williams and presidents, such as Donna Cole, the members discuss authors old and new, their styles and their philosophies. Undaunted by preliminary rejection slips, they work toward their own creative expression.

Alternate Mondays find them in the Lounge absorbed in other fascinating discussions like those begun by Father Charles Nugent of The Catholic Mind and Mr. Frank Healy of Blackfriars. Once a semester, business matters are shelved and Lounge or Tea House provides background for a costumed literary "Who am I?" party, which unites the members in spirited and stimulating gaiety.

This year, a prime purpose of the Club has been to establish its publication, The Essay, as a literary supplement to the Centurion.

tell college events —— monthly . . .

Pearl delivers her copy — late!

In reporting Manhattanville's news, the Centurion has shown us a kaleidescopic pattern of our many-sided campus life.

Rosie and her staff held Benziger Building meetings to plan monthly issues. Reporters covered dances, plays, lectures and meetings, and met to search for pithy headlines amid a last-minute clatter of typewriters in Rosie's room, turned Press Room for the day.

and practical

Fair play . . .

Whatever the sport, the general spirit of each intramural and intercollegiate game is a gay one, thanks to Miss Holland, Mrs. "D." and the cheers of the college.

The Athletic Banquet marked the climax of a vigorous and successful year; and, with special significance, a new tradition was begun by awarding the President's cup to the non-member of the AA board who contributed most to campus sports.

Scottie and Yvonne made a perfect team for leadership, while Mother O'Gorman's animated encouragement spurred the players to win or lose with a goal of sportsmanship and fun.

Aim for the ankle! F. Buckley, E. Gillespie, N. Keller compete for class hockey trophy.

Athletic Association officers: Y. Simpson, K. Sellers, M. Kearney, E. Hanley, Miss C. Holland, J. Desloge, S. O'Leary (President).

Our Thanks to . . .

Reverend Mother Fitzgerald, Mother O'Byrne, Mother Weston for your interest and enthusiasm;

Mother Maguire for taking time to read our writing and polish it with your marginalia;

Mother Brady for giving us so many lists;

Miss Kiernan for the advice of a real artist;

Mr. Howenstein and White Studios for photographing all the far-flung aspects of our campus life;

Mr. Sharples and Terminal Printing Company for the sincere interest and helpful knowledge which brought our book to life;

Mother Morgan for your typical enthusiasm for a project of your class;

The Junior typists and proofreaders whose painstaking work simplified a complicated job;

The freshmen and your Financial Committee which threw the juniors a lifeline;

And to our advertisers and patrons whose financial help made the 1950 Tower possible.
